

Be a Hero for a Better World

"School feeding is a great tool to encourage education and provide food aid to children born into extremely impoverished situations."
-- Lauren Bush

Lauren Bush (1984-)

Lauren Bush is a fashion model and the granddaughter of former President George Bush. She also devotes much of her spare time to public service. She has worked for many causes, including animal rights (she is a vegetarian) children's shelters, hospitals, and in support of women re-entering the workforce.

In 2004, while a student at Princeton University, Lauren Bush was chosen by the United Nations World Food Programme (WFP) as an Honorary Spokesperson for a student campaign designed to focus attention on global hunger on college campuses across the US. Since then she has traveled with WFP to Africa, Asia and Latin America to bring attention to the important work the World Food Programme is doing and the urgency of increased support for their efforts. Each year the World Food Programme feeds over 20 million children in more than 70 countries through their school feeding programs, but another 400 million children still go hungry. In 2007, Lauren Bush and the WFP launched The FEED project (feedprojects.org). Lauren designed a tote bag and t-shirt to raise funds for WFP's school feeding programs. The proceeds from each FEED Bag will feed a child for a year.

Lauren Bush was born on June 25, 1984 in Texas
